Sub: Show-cause notice

With reference to the above subject, we wish to inform you the following facts:

1. As you are aware that you have been working with our sister concern M/s Gram as a Web Developer from 1st September 2015. Since your performance during the probation period was not found satisfactory, the management was not interested to extend your service. But, considering your request and inability to find out another job immediately, we have extended your probation with an intention that you will improve your work quality and will not leave the company without notice. Moreover, we have provided you with all possible support from the office as a newcomer.
2. During this time, three major clients have approached us with their works. We were reluctant to undertake the work due to lack of experienced employees at that time. You were the only employee working in web designing and we had no confidence on you to carry out the work independently. But, you have assured us that you can take up the work with full confidence and can deliver within the stipulated time. As such the company has undertaken the work and assigned to you. You have said to be worked on the project for quite some time and quit the job without any intimation. Your last working day was 19th April 2016. On 20th April 2016 we received your email stating that you are resigning from our service with retrospective effect from 19.04.2016.
3. Since your appointment was purely on contract basis and you had not been found fit for the proposed job, formal appointment order or offer letter was not served to you. However, the terms and conditions of your appointment were explained to you orally by us several times.
4. As you are a professional, you know the nature of this business. This is a highly competitive field and the work is time bound.
5. You may remember that we have been paying you for the last seven months without any productivity. Under these circumstances you should have shown at least some common ethics to the company. Instead you have cheated the company without giving any consideration as an employer. And now you have started sending emails asking for a final settlement.

6. You can realize that the company was entirely depending on you and the above three clients. This is because the company was running on huge loss. Due to your ignorance and irresponsibility we lost the entire works and thereby our financial burdens doubled.

7. In this connection we wish to conclude the matter as follows:

a) While reviewing the pros and cons of your service with us we found that the company has a huge loss on account of your recruitment. This includes the salary given to you during your service period and the work we lost due to your misbehavior. Hence no matter of final settlement arises. In turn we are thinking of getting back the loss from you. As an alternative solution, you may resume for duty immediately and finish the work you were assigned. Thereafter the accounts can be settled amicably.

b) While going through your personal records, it is found that it is your regular practice that you have not been working anywhere continuously and satisfactorily.

c) This is a serious dereliction of duty on your part. If you want any more clarification you come to our office with prior intimation. We are not interested to communicate through email. If you are not settling the matter immediately, we will be forced to initiate legal action against you including taking up the matter with your present employer, etc.
